

Case Credit Scoring

CREDSCO

Description

The data respond to information on loan applications to a bank. A sample of 4,455 clients is provided for whom sociodemographic and economic information, the characteristics of the credit requested and the result of the evaluation are available.

There are two categories of opinion: positive, indicating that the credit can be granted, and negative, indicating that it will be denied.

It is important to understand the differences between those that have a positive opinion and those that do not. There are several alternatives, but for any of them, the first step is to perform a good description and cleaning of the data.

Dictionary

The value 99999999 in the continuous variables indicates missing value. A 0 indicates a missing value in categorical variables.
